HOW STREAMLINING YOUR WORKFLOW CAN PREVENT LAWYER BURNOUT

Burnout is an escalating concern for law firms. A 2023 survey out of Massachusetts reports that a staggering 77% of survey attorneys are dealing with burnout, 26% experience anxiety, and another 21% face depression.

Cloud-based practice management software can help your organization combat this issue. From streamlined workflows and collaboration tools to more efficient and accurate billing, these tools offer a lifeline for legal professionals, promising a healthier work-life balance.

EFFICIENT CASE MANAGEMENT

Gone are the days of scattered case files and missed deadlines. Backdocket centralizes case tracking, providing real-time updates that streamline communication and reduce unnecessary stress. Automated task assignments ensure that work is evenly distributed, preventing overload.

Backdocket also cultivates collaboration among team members, encouraging a shared approach that enhances problem-solving and camaraderie.

TIME TRACKING AND BILLING

A heavy administrative workload, in addition to manual time tracking, can encroach on your free time. According to the New Jersey Bar Association survey, lawyers who work more than 15 to 20 hours more than their standard business hours are 8 times more likely to experience burnout than colleagues who rarely work outside business hours.

A cloud-based practice management system with time tracking and billing features can automate time tracking and record every task to keep your firm's revenue stream flowing. It can also reduce administrative workload by automating tasks that once bogged down legal teams, like compiling timesheets and double-checking entries.

DOCUMENT MANAGEMENT

Lawyers spend many hours on document creation and management each week, with up to much of that considered wasted time that could be better spent on self-care or catching up on revenue-generating tasks.

With practice management software, no more rummaging through stacks of paper or navigating a maze of folders on your computer. This software provides a centralized hub for all your documents with a powerful search function, making it easy to access, organize, and share legal files, saving you countless hours and reducing stress.

CLIENT COMMUNICATION

The Wyoming State Bar states that a third of phone calls for law firms are picked up live, and it takes 8 emails on average to schedule an appointment with a law firm. 64% of lead-generating voicemails left for law firms are never returned. Client communication is vital for establishing trust and streamlining your practice's workflow.

Practice management software with instant messaging features eliminates phone tag and email delays, ensuring prompt client updates. A system with a secure file-sharing feature that safeguards confidential data, simplifies document sharing, and maintains security while keeping your clients updated on their cases.

CALENDAR MANAGEMENT

Practice management software with a calendar management feature improves law firm efficiency to reduce your mental workload. Through sophisticated calendar integration, it seamlessly gathers data from multiple sources, like Google Calendar and Outlook, ensuring real-time updates.

This process guarantees that all vital appointments, meetings, and deadlines are captured and readily accessible for every firm member.

WORKFLOW AUTOMATION

With automated features, backdocket helps your law firm streamline tasks from document generation to deadline tracking, reducing manual labor and the associated stress.

By delegating routine processes to backdocket's intuitive automation, your attorneys regain precious time and mental space, supporting a balanced work-life equation for reduced burnout.

REMOTE WORK FACILITATION

In the post-covid landscape, having practice management software that allows remote access to case files, scheduling, and billing is essential for attorneys to balance hybrid working arrangements with their personal lives.

As a cloud-powered platform, backdocket allows lawyers to access scheduling and communication features, important files, and billing tools from any location and anytime. This enables remote work, letting them create their own schedule to alleviate the stress and burnout from too much time in the office.
